Let me tell you something: If you feel the weight of your sins, do not be afraid! He is a loving Father; God's mercy is greater than we can imagine.

Mother Teresa

Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

In today's Gospel reading Jesus urges his listeners to "Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful." He also offers several examples of putting mercy into action. Listeners can then reason their way into how to put the values of the Gospel reflected in these imperatives into practice in other situations. Good stewards look for opportunities to exercise God's mercy toward others. They realize that, in doing so, their own experience of God's mercy not only becomes more profound but affirms their hope of seeing the Lord face-to-face one day. How have we experienced God's mercy in our lives? How might our thinking, attitudes, words and actions reflect God's mercy on someone else today?

Jesus healed the sick. Do you suppose that every time He touched a person in their illness, in their brokenness, He walked away with a part of their malady now integrated into His very body? When He healed a blind person was His own sight impaired? When He moved the lame to dance did His own legs begin to falter and weaken? Did leprosy scales appear on His hands and arms when He freed someone from leprosy? Did a part of Him die when He brought back others from the darkness of death? Was Jesus so entrenched in the human experience that He brought the fragmented onto and into Himself for a moment before the Father brought Him back to wholeness?
